

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Francis C. P. Keiru served the government for over 30 years as a secondary school teacher (deputy headmaster level), as an education officer and education attaché for over twelve years in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. He served as a deputy general manager, University Students Accommodation Board University of Nairobi (1987-1989). He was also a national coordinator School Feeding Program a GOK/World Food Program (1999-2003). He holds a Master's degree of Theology (African Christianity) from Daystar University and a Bachelor's degree in Geography and Religious studies and Concurrent Diploma in Education (Makerere University, Kampala) specializing in Philosophy (Ethics and problems), Religion and society and African Theology. His Christian life in Protestant Chaplaincy in Moscow (over 12 years) yielded in him a rich interdenominational scope. His call for unity in Christ's purpose is thus well informed. He has authored the book African Christian Worship Today. He is an ordained church elder in the Presbyterian Church of East Africa.
